YOU ARE NOT ALONE

Pitzer and The Claremont Colleges are here for you if you have been impacted by:

• sexual assault
• dating violence
• stalking
• sexual harassment
• gender- or sexual orientation-based harassment

These resources are for students of any sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression.

You can meet with the Title IX Office to do any or all of the following:

• Get info about possible next steps so you can choose what’s right for you
• Request support resources only
  (i.e., housing/academic assistance/free counseling)
• Request safety and non-disciplinary measures only
  (i.e., no contact restrictions)
• Start a formal investigation

People responsible for the safety and wellbeing of students are required to share what you tell them with the Title IX Office, law enforcement, or anyone else at Pitzer.

I need to talk. Who's here to listen?

What if I want to talk, but I don't want anything reported?
Confidential resources do not share what you tell them with the Title IX Office, law enforcement, or anyone else at Pitzer.

What if I want to talk to a professor, coach, or staff member?
People responsible for the safety and wellbeing of students are required to share what you tell them with Pitzer’s Title IX Office. This includes faculty, staff, coaches, Student Affairs staff, and Residential Life staff. If you speak with them, they must contact the Title IX Office, which will follow up with you to offer comprehensive resources and support. It is your decision when or whether to respond, and no one else will be notified without your permission.

You can meet with the Title IX Office to do any or all of the following:

• Get info about possible next steps so you can choose what’s right for you
• Request support resources only
  (i.e., housing/academic assistance/free counseling)
• Request safety and non-disciplinary measures only
  (i.e., no contact restrictions)
• Start a formal investigation

If I meet with the Title IX Office, what happens next?

Pitzer’s Title IX Office helps with any situation involving gender-based discrimination. What you tell the office will be kept private, and you do not need to disclose details about what happened or who was involved. The office will prioritize respecting your wishes for next steps.

In an emergency, call 911 or Campus Safety at 909.607.2000. In a non-emergency, crimes can be reported to the police by calling 909.607.2958.