Federal Government/White House/National Coverage

- Public health experts are calling on police to stop using tear gas on people protesting the death of George Floyd. Doctors say the gas can damage the respiratory system and aggravate COVID-19 symptoms or aid spread of the disease.
- Six months of COVID-19 has produced the following list of things we think we know:
  - We’ll have to live with this for a long time.
  - You should be wearing a mask.
  - American public health infrastructure needs an update.
  - Responding to the virus is extraordinarily expensive.
  - We have a long way to go to fix virus testing.
  - We can’t count on herd immunity to keep us healthy.
  - The virus produces more symptoms than expected.
  - We can worry a bit less about infection from surfaces.
  - We can also worry less about a mutating virus.
  - We can’t count on warm weather to defeat the virus.

- Here are six things we still don’t know about the virus after six months:
  - How many people have been infected.
  - The amount of virus it takes to make you sick.
  - Why some people get so much sicker than others.
The role of children in spreading the virus.
When or where the new coronavirus started spreading.
How long you'll be immune after infection.

State of California/Governor Gavin Newsom/State Coverage
1:00 p.m.

- The number of new daily COVID-19 cases climbed to a new high Monday, with the state reporting more than 3,000 positive tests for the second time in a week.
- At the same time, the state continues to ramp up testing for COVID-19. The state has conducted a total of 1,550,088 tests, with 56,085 new tests reported Monday, the data shows.

L.A. Department of Public Health/County of Los Angeles
1:00 p.m.

- 60 new deaths and 1,202 new cases reported today.
- More than 633,000 people have been tested for COVID-19 and had the results reported to county health officials. Of those tests, 8% have been positive.
- As of today, 6,638 people who tested positive for COVID-19 (12% of positive cases) have been hospitalized at some point during their illness. There are 1,389 people who are currently hospitalized, 27% of these people are in the ICU and 18% are on ventilators.
- LA DPH encouraged everyone engaging in peaceful protest should always wear a face covering over their nose and mouth and keep six feet apart from others not in your household.
- The current Health Officer Order, Safer at Work and in the Community, allows for in-person dining at restaurants and hair salons to reopen once the establishments are able to implement the required distancing and infection control directives. The Health Officer Order specifically requires businesses to follow the COVID-19 infection control protocols. As such, restaurant and hair salon owners and operators must complete and implement these protocols prior to reopening. Brewpubs, breweries, bars, pubs, craft distilleries, and wineries that do not offer sit-down, dine-in meals are still required to remain closed. Higher-risk businesses remain closed.
- Ongoing protests over the death of George Floyd have momentarily halted progress in Los Angeles County’s fight against COVID-19 as several test sites have been closed or have modified their hours.
